

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's go dancing!

Learning Outcome

Describe routines and regular activities in a wider range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Do you like to dance? Why or why not?
- Where do you go to dance?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about free time activities.
- I can talk about past habits.
- I can discuss experiences I've had or haven't had.

Let's Explore!

In this article, Sally explores the history of dancing.

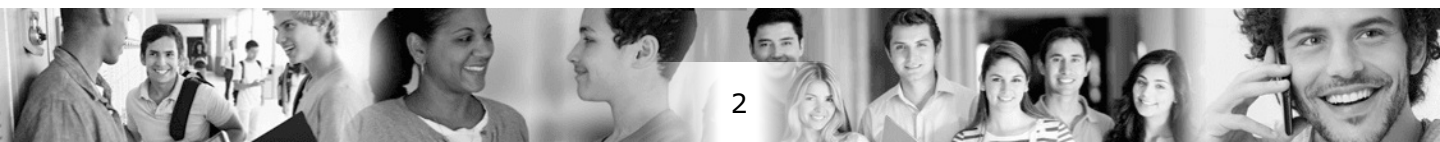

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

You'd probably feel kind of silly jumping around the floor, flapping your arms and legs and shaking your head and body. But if you were doing it to music, you'd be dancing! Throughout history, dancing has been a way for people to express themselves physically and emotionally.

Ballroom dancing began in England in the late 1700s. The upper classes of England used to dance at social events called balls. In the early 1800s, people of all social groups would dance in public halls around the world. Ballroom dancing has become extremely popular throughout the world. If you have done the waltz, foxtrot, samba, chacha, or rumba, then you have gone ballroom dancing! Disco dancing began in the 1970s. It used to be very popular in dance clubs in New York City.

It's easy to understand why any kind of dancing is so popular. It makes people feel good, it's fun, and it's great exercise. It's never too hard to find a place to go to express yourself through dancing.

Let's Practice!

What happened in the 1700s*?

* You read this as "the seventeen hundreds". It means all the years from 1700 - 1799.

Instructions: Read the paragraph and circle all the words that place the meaning of each sentence in the past.

The upper classes of England used to dance at social events. Later, people of all social groups would dance in public dance halls around the world. Disco used to be very popular in dance clubs in New York City. It's easy to understand why any kind of dancing is so popular.

Let's Practice!

Do you like the rumba*, foxtrot, samba or cha-cha*?

*The "rumba" is a modern ballroom dance to latin music.

The "foxtrot" is a smooth, progressive dance to the music of big bands, popular in the 1930s.

The "samba" is a lively Brazilian dance.

*The "cha-cha" is a Cuban dance that began in the 1950s.

Instructions: Find and circle all of the different music vocabulary hidden in the word search.

Words

1. ballroom dancing
2. foxtrot
3. samba
4. chacha
5. rumba
6. waltz
7. disco ball
8. dance club

Extension Activity

Watch a video of two or more dances and compare them.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Choose two or more of the dances mentioned in this lesson.
- Go online. Find a video showing people doing or talking about each dance.
- Write a paragraph explaining the difference between the dances. You can discuss the music, use of hands, use of feet, etc.
- Present the information to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I watch two or more videos on different dances.

☐ ☐

I write a paragraph comparing the dances.

☐ ☐

I read the paragraph to a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- ballroom dancing (noun): a series of popular dances between two people
e.g. Ballroom dancing began in England in the late 1700s.
- ball (noun): a formal social gathering that involves dancing
e.g. The upper classes of England used to dance at social events called balls.
- club (noun): the modern way to talk about a place for dancing
e.g. Disco used to be very popular in dance clubs.
- waltz (noun): a type of dance using triple time (1, 2, 3 ... 1, 2, 3 ...)
e.g. If you have ever done the waltz, then you have done ballroom dancing!
- disco (noun): a type of dance that became popular in the 1970s.
e.g. Disco dancing used to be very popular in New York City.

Learning Points

Used To and Would for Past Habits

Used to and would are both used to talk about past actions.

We use used to to express something that we often did in the past, but don't do anymore. It is often used to talk about something that was a habit, or a way of life in the past. We use it to contrast past habits with present situations. Used to can refer to situations as well as habitual actions. We use would to refer to past actions and habits as well. Would only refers to actions, but not situations.

Examples:

- The upper classes of England used to dance at social events called balls.
- In the early 1800s, people of all social groups would dance in public dance halls around the world.

Learning Points

Present Perfect Tense to Talk About Experiences

You use the Present Perfect tense to talk about a finished action or event that is connected to the present in some way.

You can use the Present Perfect tense to talk about experience. When you use the Present Perfect tense, you think about the past and present together. There is some connection between what happened in the past and now.

- I have learned English = I learned English in the past and now I can speak English.
- He has bought a painting = He bought the painting in the past and now he has a painting.

We use have/has + the past participle of the verb in Present Perfect sentences.

Look at the chart about how to form the Present Perfect tense:

Main Verb	Past Tense	Past Participle	Present Perfect Tense
be	was	been	Dancing has always been...
become	became	became	Disco has become...
do	did	done	If you have done...

It is important to note that you cannot use specific time expressions last year or when I was a child with the Past Continuous tense.

However, you can use expressions that do not specify that time, like often or already.

Incorrect: Last year, I've eaten cake

Correct: I've already eaten cake.

Examples:

- Dancing has always been a way for people to express themselves physically and emotionally.
- Ballroom dancing has become extremely popular throughout the world.

